

REVIEW

A conditional sentence has two parts, the main clause and the adverbial clause. The adverbial clause usually begins with 'if', but in the negative, 'if not' is often expressed by 'unless'. It can either begin with the main clause or the adverbial clause.

There are three common conditional sentences:

- He will come if you call him.
  - something will happen in the future if a certain condition is fulfilled
- He would come if you called him.
  - hypothetical and imaginary, the condition does not exist in the present and it is unlikely to be fulfilled.
- He would have come if you had called him.
  - something did not happen in the past because the condition was not fulfilled.

Review these.

- We shall go to the seaside if the weather is fine.
- She won't talk to you unless you apologise to her.
- If you don't start now, you will be late.
- He will come if you invite him.
- She will not believe it unless you tell her personally.
- If Jack helps me, I shall be delighted.
- Unless you start now, you will not be able to catch up.
- I would buy a big house if I had a lot of money.
- If I were the teacher, I would punish the whole class.
- You would have enjoyed the show if you had seen it.
- If the police had arrived a few minutes earlier, they would have caught the robber.
- The accident would not have happened if the driver had been more careful.